El Paso, Tex., Aug. 1.—General

Francisco Gonzales, commanding Carranza forces at Juarez, announced today that Captain Marcello Marcullo commanding the detachment of Carranzista soldiers pursuing the two bandits who yesterday were driven from the American side of the border near Fort Hancock, had reported the bandits were about twelve miles south of the border, apparently making for the Mexican Central Railway.

HEARING IS GIVEN ON PRICE OF PAPER

Washington, Aug. 1.—Newspaper publishers and printers were given a hearing today by the federal trade commission.

J. H. Zerbey of Hotsville, Pa., representing the National Editorial association, charged that the International Paper company was holding more than a million dollars' worth of news print paper, although publishers all over the country are facing increases in price, and the possibility of difficulty to make new contracts for supplies.

P. T. Dodge, representing the International company, told the commission that the reserve stock to which Mr. Zerhey referred was held to sustain the company's record of never having

F. B. Glass, vice-president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, declared in his testimony that the publishers in the association were morally certain there was collusion among paper-makers to force up the price, and he promised to place in the hands of the commission within sixty days what he said would

Mr. Glass said the Publishers' association viewed the situation with extreme alarm. Increases of 25 to 35 per cent on contracts, and sometimes 100 per cent on emergency orders, he said, were taking the profits of most newspapers and driving them to the wall.

HISTORY MAKING DEVELOPMENTS OF THE WAR

The voyage of the first merchant submarine across the Atlantic.

The use of aeroplanes for scouting.

GINGLES' JINGLES

THE BASEBALL FAN.

The baseball fan with head bowed low, held firm between his mits, from out the depths of spinach, said, "I know we'd give them fits, I knew we'd hang the stuff on them—we had it up our sleeves, Hi Stibbens was a willow arm, none picks them off like Steve." That old champ team from windy tows would sacrifice some joys, had they went up against our bunch, tried out our Wopville boys; for Slim who plays on second, grabs 'em up both near and far, and "Cyclone Bill" as shortstop is a bright and shining star, with Tom on first and Jerry third, we'd been right in the whirl, and Hi when he gets winding right, that boy can surely twirl." But dark and cloudy was the skies, the rain in torrents fell, and saved the champs from being trimmed— from being done and well.

BRODY IS GATEWAY TO GALICIAN PLAINS

Position Now Hammered by Slavs Is Important From Strategic Standpoint.

[SPECIAL TO THIS GAZETTE]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—Brody, one of the Galician gateways through which the troops of the Czar are pressing their advance upon Lemberg, is the subject of the following war geography bulletin issued today in Washington by the National Geographic society.

Only about two miles beyond the Russian border, the Galician town of Brody is a point of great strategic importance on the eastern war front because it controls an important railway line leading from Dubno, 35 miles to the northeast, to Lemberg, which is only 62 miles to the southwest.

At the beginning of the war Brody was a thriving commercial center with a population approaching 20,000, more than two-thirds of whom were Jews. Its prosperity was checked to some extent about 40 years ago when after having enjoyed the privileges of a free commercial city for 100 years, its charter was withdrawn.

Less than half a century before Brody was created a town in the 17th century it was the scene of the Polish battle in which the Poles, commanded by their famous Grand Hetman, Stanislaus Ponieckipolski, defeated a Tartar army. This was the last battle of Ponieckipolski's distinguished career. For a quarter of a century he was at war with the Turks and Swedes, his initiation in military science being somewhat disastrous for his first important engagement and was held in close confinement for three years at Constantinople. His release in 1622 he was placed in command of the Polish public forces and with a force of 25,000 defeated 60,000 Tartars at Martynow. His achievements against the army of Gustavus adolphus were no less noteworthy than his series of victories whereby he succeeded in keeping the Ukraine under Polish rule.

Brody twice suffered from disastrous conflagrations during the 19th century. The first, occurring in 1801, destroyed 1,500 houses, while the fire of 1869 reduced 1,000 homes and business establishments to ashes.

"The upper waters of the Stry river form an irregular arc extending from the southwest to the north of Brody, being 10 miles distant at its nearest point, toward the northwest. Five miles from the city, just beyond the border on the Dubno-Lemberg highway, is the Russian town of Radzivilow, with a population of about 3,000."

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Dry pastures were responsible in large measure for the appearance of 60,000 cattle Monday at seven leading western markets. Quality and condition were the poorest of the season. Sales were steady on quality, but 10@15c lower otherwise. Advice from the Kansas pasture area were that rain was badly needed. Iowa was a liberal contributor to the Chicago hog supply yesterday. Receipts elsewhere were not excessive, but prices declined 10@15c. Most of the bulk of the sold at $9.30@9.50, with good to choice mixed at $9.50@9.80 and packing stuff largely at $9.25@9.40.

Lambs Fall Off.

Ovine receipts were in excess of expectancy and the price slow at steady to 15c lower prices. Native lambs, many of which had a dried out appearance, suffered most.

Receipts for today are estimated at 3,500 cattle, 18,000 hogs and 14,000 sheep, against 1,304 cattle, 8,149 hogs and 17,320 sheep a year ago.

Average price of hogs at Chicago, Monday, was $9.65 against $9.73 Saturday, $9.59 a week ago and $8.59 a year ago.

Good Cattle Scarce.

Good beef cattle sold steady to strong; others slow to 10 to 15c lower. Best steers sold at $10.25, but few were good enough to pass $9.50 and $9.25 to $9.50 took the bulk. The range season was inaugurated by the arrival of 1,100 Texas and Mexican steers from Montana, a common to fair kind selling largely at $7@7.65. Choice to fancy steers... $9.90@10.50. Poor to good steers... 7.60@8.75. Yearling, fair to fancy... 6.40@8.25. Fat cows and heifers... 6.40@8.25. Canning cows and cullers 2.55@3.25. Native bulls and stags... 5.25@8.25. Feeding cattle, 600 to 1,000 lbs... 5.00@7.85. Poor to fancy veal calves... 8.50@11.85.

Hog Receipts Heavy.

A liberal hog supply of indifferent quality sold at 10@15c declines. Good hogs suffered least. A $10.00 cop was made and the bulk sold at $9.40@9.50. The close was weak, but a fair clearance was made.

Prices of sales... $9.40@10.00. Heavy butchers and ship... 9.80@10.65. Light butchers, 190 to 230... 9.85@10.90. Light bacon... 145 to 190... 9.40@9.92 1/2. Heavy packing, 260 to 400... 9.40@9.50. Mixed packing, 200 to 250... 9.35@9.60. Rough, heavy packing... 9.00@9.15. Poor to best pigs, 60 to 185... 8.00@9.50. Stags, 80 lbs. dockage per head... 9.25@9.75.

SOLDIERING NOT SUCH HARD WORK?

Russell Agnew Writes from Fort Sam Houston, Texas, as to Happenings in First Wisconsin.

Evidently the cares of the soldier's life, its joys and discomforts, do not trouble Russell Agnew, one of the Janesville boys who enlisted in the First Wisconsin, for service on the Mexican border. Like a true soldier, Agnew sees the bright side of life and writes of the happenings in the following interesting vein:

Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas, Friday, 11 A. M.

The first, second and third regiments, Wisconsin, have just come in from a nine mile hike and they all look as though they had been in swimming. Talk about sweating, you can sweat all the time you travel. We are getting broken in for our hike to the target range, which is about 25 or 30 miles from here. We carry from 65 to 70 pounds when on the march and the time you travel eight miles it feels as though you had 100 pounds on your back. Some of the boys carry picks, some shovels and some even carry cutters.

This is a pretty country about here and San Antonio is a very nice city. It has a very pretty park where you can find a swimming pool and the boys who are in camp here keep the place pretty well filled up with palm trees and a lot of pretty plants that do not see at home. I noticed one nice thing that they do not have in the parks at home, that is places for people to cook when visiting the parks. In the parks here they have stone tables all over the park and stone benches to sit on. The park is lit up at night with electric lights and is very pretty. There is a zoo in the park and they have some very fine animals in it. There are swings all through the grounds for people to use and it looks like there are more people here than there are more men in the army.

Every Sunday one of the bands of the regiments goes over to the park and plays.

San Antonio is the second largest city of Texas and a pretty city. There are a lot of places for the boys from the north to visit. I have been through the "Alamo," where Crockett fell, and it is a very interesting place. There is a river that runs through the city and they have made it very pretty by building cement walls for it to flow through and all the trees along with it are lit up at night with colored lights. There are a lot of nice things here and they are doing everything to make the boys who belong to them feel at home while here.

Visited the governor's office and had a fine reception. Tonight I am going to take part in the third degree work. I think if we came down here to fight further, we would not have to go any further as there are a lot of them in this city.

Everyone is running for their mail now. One fellow just came in my tent with a big box of candy. Last Sunday I was out for a walk and I received a package with everything a fellow would want. We do not know when we will get back home and I am sure you will be getting home soon.

I receive the Gazette every day and want to thank the Gazette for sending the paper. I read in the Gazette that the boys from the first Wisconsin were going to be members of this company and I was glad to hear that. I am not getting enough to eat and I had lost about five or six pounds. I want to state that I am not on the train we have been here we get all we want to eat and there is always some left over, and as far as lazing is light, we have lost a little but the heat here is the cause. I think if I were as big and fat as young Lightfoot I would be willing to lose sixteen more pounds. I have just finished my dinner and I had roast beef, boiled potatoes, cabbage, rice pudding, bread and coffee, and all you could eat. The three young Janesville boys in the Beloit company are well and looking fine. Your O. of Janesville, who is with this company, is well, and by the time he gets back home ought to be a good horseman and we will recommend him to anyone who needs an orderly. He is Major Garlock's orderly and a good one, as he is getting so he can put a bridle on right and also a saddle. The first time he put the saddle on he had the horse go and the horse was the major the other. One of our popular young men of this company thinks Janesville is quite a place now, as he met one of Janesville's young ladies last night and he was very happy about it. "Wise," mail from Janesville. I am glad to state that I can keep up with him though, as the mail man hardly ever passes me, he thanks "O. of Janesville."

We are going to have foot inspection now to see how this marching is affecting us. I have met a few people from Janesville in nearby towns and they all look like they are doing good. A gentleman from Janesville, Mr. F. Schottel, and spent the day with him. It is getting time now for the doctor to get here and I am sure with my regards to all my friends and thanking the Gazette for their paper, which is read by all in our company, I remain

Respectfully yours,
Russell S. Agnew,
Co. G., First Infantry.

VALUABLE STOCKS SHIPPED TO ALABAMA

John E. Kennedy Sells Sixteen Heifers Valued at $5,000 to Southern Purchaser—Other Shipments.

That Rock county is fast becoming a buying center for purchasers of live stock is evidenced by the fact that a large number of the live stock of the Rock County Short Horn Breeders' association this morning closed a deal whereby sixteen of the short horn heifers go to Alta, Alabama, for consideration of $5,000. The purchaser, also bought $2,000 worth of the same strain of stock from other Rock county dealers. The heifers were shipped by the Rock county live stock dealer, James C. Dering, the cattle man for a cross country line of railroad that runs through Mississippi and Alabama. The stock for the residents since his railroad's right-of-way.

He was arrested at Crystal Springs Sunday night. A suspicion pointed to him when he seemed flush with money during the afternoon, after being broke on Saturday night and seeking to be trusted for drinks in the saloon.

He spent the night and all day yesterday at the station and it was not until late that he admitted the job. He entered through a rear window after taking off the screen. Fifteen dollars was in the till, half of this amount in dollars, halves and quarters, and the balance in dimes and nickels. He took it all and left but two dollars and forty-four cents on his person when arrested.

It was thought that Simmons might have been a companion in the job and his brother, Clarence, was arrested. The former denied that he had an accomplice and said that he committed the robbery alone. Clarence Simmons established his innocence to the satisfaction of the police.

CHARLES SHIMMEAL SHOT BY NEIGHBOR

Injured Man Hurried to Beloit Hospital—Warrant Out For C. J. Capman, Alleged Assailant.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Shimmeal, Aug. 1.—As a culmination of a series of neighborhood quarrels which have resulted in frequent arrests, sometimes of members of the Capman family, sometimes of Shimmeal, who live on adjoining farms near this village, Charles Shimmeal is in a Beloit hospital suffering from a bullet wound in the left side and a warrant has been issued for C. J. Capman, his alleged assailant.

According to the story told by Shimmeal, the immediate trouble started this morning when he threw a stone at a cow owned by Capman, which one of the Capman children was driving. When it trespassed on his property, Capman is alleged to have become enraged and walked into the road and shot Shimmeal down while the latter was standing on his own property.

The Shimmeal-Capman rows have been frequent and varied in the courts. All sorts of charges and counter charges have been made such as assault and battery. It is alleged that Shimmeal is not severely injured, but he will be confined to the hospital for some days. The warrant for Capman's arrest was sworn out by Judge Clark of the Beloit municipal court. The trouble occurred at six this morning.

TREND OF BUSINESS MORE CONSERVATIVE

Federal Reserve Board's Report Declares Outlook Is Satisfactory, Indicating "Permanent Prosperity."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 1.—The monthly summary of business in United States prepared by federal reserve board today from reports from the agents of the twelve federal reserve districts, shows domestic demands gradually taking the place of foreign orders.

The present trend of business is more along the line of conservatism which bankers and business men have been urging, the summary stated. "It tends to a more permanent prosperity. The pressure to place new orders and to stock up heavily which was so prevalent a month or so ago, is disappearing. "The general business outlook is satisfactory."

CAN'T CO-OPERATE IN POLISH RELIEF

Washington, Aug. 1.—Germany has informed the United States that "on account of the impractical conditions imposed by Great Britain upon the shipment of foodstuffs from America into Poland," further negotiations for co-operation in Polish relief work are devoid of purpose.

Owing to favorable harvest reports, however, the imperial government says relief aid will be unnecessary after October next.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl who is anxious to begin her own life. As I do not know in any particular thing I have decided to try the stage, since I love to act.

(1) What would be the proper thing to say?
(2) Is an introduction to some manager necessary in order to get a start?
(3) Tell the man in the box office that Miss Brown is your name. I would like to see the manager of the company as you possibly can and don't be disappointed. After you get an interview you will have to prove a bit of acting that you are worth hiring.

(4) An introduction is not necessary. If you want to earn your living, but are not good in any particular thing, I would advise you to attend a business school and prepare yourself for something. Most people who try life work do not succeed and they feel the life exceptionally hard.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Although my complexion is naturally good, my nose shines terribly. Please give a remedy.
Perhaps the best local treatment for a shiny nose would be: sponge with lemon juice, slightly diluted and rinsed off with cold water. Frequent washing is naturally desirable, but it is best to avoid very hot water, since it is inclined to stimulate the sebaceous glands and increase the secretion of oil.
Rice powder ought to be good. I think you will find a small box of powder which comes in cake form.

(5) Blue, green, yellow, peach, brown and red ought to be becoming. (6) The boy acted in a childish manner. He had reason to feel put out but should have blamed himself for being so about asking you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is a girl seventeen old enough to study to be a nurse?
(2) Is an eighth grade education sufficient?
(3) Please tell me where I can secure information.
(4) Should the hair be washed every two weeks or how often?
(5) What is a harmless remedy for freckles?
(6) What color can a girl with Auburn hair wear?
(7) Most hospitals require a girl to be eighteen years of age.
(8) No.
(9) Inquire at a hospital.
(10) It is all right to wash the hair every three or four weeks in summer, and every two or three in winter.
(11) The use of buttermilk every day will make freckles less conspicuous. Lemon juice also weakens their color.
(12) Brown, yellow, dark green and sometimes blue.

Marrying a Butterfly
By EVA LEONARD

In Which Ethel Firmly Resolves to Turn Over a New Leaf.

Ethel sat under the fine old apple tree, whose branches swept the ground on the side toward the road. She had a writing pad in her lap, which she spread out, and taking the cap from her fountain pen, she began to write. "I must write to Ralph," she said, "prodding herself to begin her work. But I will never go back until I know a little something about cooking housework." She leaned back against the tree and closed her eyes. "Poor Ralph," she mused. "I have been such a disappointment to him. It is a long journey back to his respect and love. I have wept from the closed eyes and stooped down from the cheeks. But I will show him that I am something besides a doll; that I can be of more use than a parlor ornament."

Finally she sat up and squaring the sheet of paper before her began to write. For some time the pen hovered over the paper, but when she turned the page she stopped and reread what she had written. "No, that will never do; that does not say what I mean," and she tore the paper and began again. She wrote rapidly for some time, but again the letter was displeasing to the severe little critic, and it was reduced to fragments. "That is too long. I will only write a note, saying that I realize that I have been all wrong in my attitude and am ready to try and learn."

Again she placed a sheet of paper on the pad and again the pen traveled across the page. "There, I think that is long enough. I do not want to say too much. His mother may know about this," she held up the sheet and read: "Dear Ralph: I have had time to think since I came to this farm more than I ever had in my life before. At least I have thought more. I see now that a failure I am and how patient you have been with me. I shall not come back until I do better. I am not telling you where I am, for I want to work out this problem alone. When I have succeeded I shall return to see your loving, helpful wife. ETHEL."

The girl read and reread the letter, smiled with satisfaction and tucked it in an envelope and addressed it.

"I hope Ralph's mother will not say anything to spoil the effect of this letter," she thought with an anxious little pucker between her brows. She knew nothing of the moderate drinker who she had been opposed to their marriage. She concluded therefore, that she would take occasion to gloat over the fulfillment of her dark prophecies.

"Tomorrow I am going to take my first lesson in cooking of dear old Mrs. Morison. I mean to ask Ava Telford to come with me. I want to see if I can dress the part. I want the old lady to believe I am in earnest. She gathered up her writing materials and started for the house. (To be continued.)

Household Hints

CHILI SAUCE.
This delicious chili sauce is excellent served with omelets, stews and also for oyster cocktails.
The ingredients are as follows:
Twelve cups of firm, not too ripe tomatoes, four cups of sugar, two teaspoons of ground cloves, two teaspoons of ground cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of ground ginger, one tablespoon of mustard, one red pepper, four large onions, one cup of oil.
Wash the onions and cut them into thin slices. The outer skin of the onions should be removed, and the chop the onions. Some people prefer water to remove the skin. The reason for this is obvious. Mix the ingredients together and boil slowly for two hours, removing any scum that settles on top while it is cooking. Seal while hot in sterilized glass jars. If the glasses are kept warm in a pan of water on the stove there will be no danger of the bottles breaking. Store in a cool dry place.

GOOSEBERRY RELISH.
Five cups of gooseberries, one and one-fourth cup raisins, one onion, one cup of brown sugar, three tablespoons mustard, three tablespoons ginger, three tablespoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon cayenne, one quart vinegar.
Wash and drain berries, add seeds and raisins and onions, wash and sliced. Chop or force through a meat chopper, put into the preserving kettle and add sugar, mustard, ginger, salt and cayenne. Pour over the berries and bring to a boiling point. Let simmer forty-five minutes, strain through a coarse sieve. Bottle and seal.

MIXED PRESERVES.
Take two dozen peaches, pare, stone and quarter. Select two dozen pears, pare, remove seeds and quarter. Take one-half baskets California blue plums, remove stones and cut into halves.
Measure a pound of sugar with a pound of fruit and put in kettle with a small amount of sugar and enough water to dissolve the sugar. Let the fruit come to a boil and skim it. Add the fruit, and allow this to boil from three-fourths to one hour or until the syrup is thick, and stir at intervals to prevent sticking. When cool cover with paraffin and seal.

GOOSEBERRY JAM.
To five pounds of granulated sugar add one quart of currant juice. Boil and skim then add eight pounds of ripe gooseberries, stoned and quartered. Simmer gently for three-quarters of an hour, remove from the stove and put the fruit in a cool place for two days. Bring again quickly to the boiling point and cook until berries are transparent, then pour in glasses and seal. Half the quantities given are sufficient for the ordinary family.

THE TABLE.
Pressed Beef Loaf—Grind two pounds lean beef and five cents worth of suet. Crush one-half pound soda crackers, mince one small onion, add piece of butter size of egg, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon black pepper, to fill add two well-beaten eggs. Mold into baking dish and cover with sweet milk; bake one and one-half hours in moderate oven. Cover baking dish. Serve cold or hot.

Croquet Carrot Cake.—Rub four cooked carrots through a sieve, add two tablespoons ground almonds, three of sugar, grated rind and juice of one lemon, yolks of four eggs, three tablespoons melted butter. Pour in to a bake tin that has been lined with puff paste. When cold make frosting of whites of eggs.

Vanilla Cookies.—Two cups brown sugar, one cup lard, two eggs, one-fourth teaspoon salt, four tablespoons vanilla, one teaspoon soda, flour to make very stiff dough. The more these cookies are kneaded the better they will be.

BLACKBERRY JAM.
Wash berries thoroughly and mash them through a colander. To each pint of juice add one pint of granulated sugar. Cook quickly for about thirty minutes. Put into jars and seal. This will keep many months.

CUCUMBER CUTLETS.
Cut off the ends of peeled short cucumbers, then cut into three equal pieces and drop them into boiling water. Do not cook or blanch them more than five minutes, otherwise the seeds will be loosened and the pieces will break. Drain and cool a little, then dip in slightly beaten egg yolk, then in cracker crumbs. Fry gently in butter, turning once. May be served with a sauce.

TO MEND SPRINKLING CAN.
Set in the sun to dry. Melt paraffin wax (about a cup) and melted and pour into the sprinkling can, turning while the wax is soft so it thoroughly covers the bottom.

WATERMELON RIND PRESERVE.
Peel the rind and scrape off all the red. Cut in strips or fancy shapes. Soak forty-eight hours in salt water, one-half cup salt to one gallon water, taking care to keep it covered with the water. Drain and soak twenty-four hours in alum water, one tablespoon alum to one gallon water. Add one and one-half pounds sugar to every pound of rind and add lemons to every five pounds of rind. Boil slowly three hours, till done through and the syrup clear. Skim off the scum that rises to top during cooking. Can while hot in sterilized jars. Be sure that each jar is airtight.

THE MODERATE DRINKER.

Several weeks ago we so far forgot our good manners as to explode about a moderate drinker whose wife had sent a pitiful appeal for advice to this department. Yet we spoke very disparagingly about the moderate drinker—so much so that the editors found a dash necessary between the letters and in our explosion.

Now some of our good friends are—or were—moderate drinkers. No, we mean they were our good friends; most of them still continue to shorten their allotment of years moderately. So the only apparent result of the explosion was a shower of protests. Out of the shower one letter, from a school principal, is worth quoting:

"I was brought up in a home where liquor was always on the sideboard for any member of the family. I never knew of any of us taking a drink to 'forget it.' I know, my dear sir, that alcohol is too often a curse and often leads to mental excesses and so on. But I think your statement is too sweeping when you place the whole array of moderate drinkers in the class of selfish cowards who are prone to try to evade the trials and troubles of life and their just responsibilities. However, let us shake hands. Perhaps we have different interpretations of the moderate drinker. I am glad to have made your acquaintance, if only by correspondence."

A good many other letters protested in the same logical way. This one is a composite of them all. We therefore wish your sorry predicament. Now we say:

—The moderate drinker; anyway, he is neither drunk nor sober, but just indifferent—and the most logical pass the world. For he admits that alcohol is a dangerous agent, yet he drinks it. He knows that it too often is a curse and often leads to immorality and the disease eventually associated with sexual immorality, yet he drinks it. Now what sort of logic can lead a man to drink an unnecessary, luxurious, expensive luxury which he knows may do irreparable harm to himself but to his innocent wife and children? We'll tell you just off the shoe.

DANGER SIGNALS.
"Seems as if I should scream at this car stops at the next stop," a friend said to me the other day.
We were riding into town on the trolley.
"Why?" I asked in surprise.
"What's the matter with the next stop?"
"Nothing at all," said she. "I just meant that I wanted the car to go ahead and not keep stopping."

"You're in a hurry?"
"It made her nervous to have the Car Stop."
"Oh, no, it just makes me nervous to have it keep stopping. Every time it passes a street without stopping I feel relieved."

Did you ever get into such a state of mind as that, reader friends? I don't mean over the stopping of a street car, but over anything at all?

For instance, did you ever get a feeling of distaste toward some perfectly inoffensive person? I know a woman who has the feeling toward a woman with whom she is thrown into contact. He thinks it is little things—things which she does that exasperate him—little mannerisms. As a matter of fact she doesn't do anything different from what she has always done, and her mannerisms haven't changed. The exasperation is subjective, not objective. It is just a state of mind into which he has permitted himself to get. This feeling toward her is merely a manifestation which should be heeded.

Stop, Look, and Listen!
He needs to look out.
So does everybody who gets into such a state of mind.

When you find that a squeaky door brings you to distraction, when the hanging of a distant window shutter makes it impossible for you to work, your instinct is to go and fix the squeaky door or the shutter.

That's all right. Fix them, but don't think that settles the matter. Fix yourself, too.

When your mind is in such an irritated state that it trifles torment it, there is something radically wrong. You need something—in nine cases out of ten, more outdoor exercise or more sleep, or both.

Some People Need More Sleep.
Some More Exercise.
I asked this woman who was nervous when the car stopped six hours a night.

The man who has the hate for the inoffensive housemate hasn't been getting half the outdoor exercise he needs.

ANITA STEWART SAYS

HOME—WOMAN'S CHARMING FRAME

When a beautiful painting is completed by a well-known master and is to be put in some art gallery, perhaps no adjunct for the exhibition of the work is given more thought than the frame. The frame may either mar or make the picture.

Just so with all the other things of life—the frame which surrounds them has much to do with their attractiveness.

A brilliant woman in the business office competing with men is a very attractive thing.

A woman on the stage or screen, doing her part in giving good, clean amusement to the public is also enlightful.

One of the fair sex writing stories which will both amuse and uplift is also lovely.

Yet—there is an unexcelled frame which causes the woman to be more attractive than she would be in any other environment.

This "frame" is the home. In a home where all the subjects bow before the King Harmony, a woman becomes more delightful than anywhere else.

When one allows one's self to fall behind the times, forsake a good personal appearance, becomes irritable when things go wrong during the day and fall to pleasantly greet the husband returning from a long day at work—that is not a good picture for the frame.

On the other hand, a woman who keeps pace with the times, cares for her personal appearance, uses tact when her spirits become ruffled, and bravely greets her husband with a cheery "good evening" when the day has gone wrong, makes her home charming frame for a most charming picture.

I mean to emphasize the difference between a house and a home. Only the woman with a large fund of tact and one who makes her home an art creates a home. In other cases it is a house only.

The Thirty-nine Steps

FAIRLY CERTAIN.
First.—Place where there are several sets of stairs—one that matters distinguished by having thirty-nine steps.
Second.—Full tide at 10:17 p. m., from place. Leaving shore only possible at full tide.
Third.—Steps not dock steps and so place probably not harbor.
Fourth.—No regular night steamer at 10:17. Means of transport must be tramp (unlikely) yacht or fishing boat.
There my reasoning stopped. I made another list, which I headed "GUESSES," but I was just as sure of the one as the other:

GUESSES.
First.—Place not harbor, but open coast.
Second.—Boat small—trawler, yacht or launch.
Third.—Place somewhere on east coast between Cromer and Dover.

It struck me as odd that I should be sitting at that desk with a cabinet minister, a field marshal, two high government officials and a French general watching me, while from the scribble of a dead man I was trying to drag a secret which meant life or death for us. Sir Walter had joined us and presently MacGillivray arrived. He had sent out instructions to watch the forts and railway stations for the three gentlemen whom I had described to Sir Walter. Not that he or any of his colleagues thought that that would do much good.

"Here's the most I can make of it," I said. "We have got to find a place where there are several staircases down to the beach, one of which has thirty-nine steps. I think it's a piece of open coast with big cliffs somewhere between the wash and the channel. Also it's a place where full tide is at 10:17 tomorrow night."

Then an idea struck me. "Is there no inspector of coast guards or some fellow like that who knows the east coast?"

Whittaker said there was and that he lived in Clapham. He went off in a car to fetch him, and the rest of us sat about the little room and talked of anything that came into our heads. I lit a pipe and went over the whole thing again till my brain grew weary.

About 1 in the morning the coast guard man arrived. He was a fine old fellow with the look of a naval officer and was desperately respectful to the company. I left the war minister to cross examine him, for I felt he would think it cheek in me to talk.

"We want you to tell us the places you know on the east coast where there are cliffs and where several sets of steps run down to the beach."

He thought for a bit. "What kind of steps do you mean, sir? There are plenty of places with roads cut down through the cliffs, and most roads have a step or two in them. Or do you mean regular staircases, all steps, so to speak?"

Sir Arthur looked toward me. "We mean regular staircases," I said.

He reflected a minute or two. "I don't know that I can think of any."

"We're on the scent at last!" I cried; a step or two in them. Or do you mean regular staircases, all steps, so to speak?"

Sir Arthur looked toward me. "We mean regular staircases," I said.

He reflected a minute or two. "I don't know that I can think of any."

"We're on the scent at last!" I cried; a step or two in them. Or do you mean regular staircases, all steps, so to speak?"

Sir Arthur looked toward me. "We mean regular staircases," I said.

He reflected a minute or two. "I don't know that I can think of any."

Wait! Second. There's a place in Norfolk—Brattlesham—beside a golf course, where there are a couple of staircases to let the gentlemen get a lost ball."

"That's not it," I said. "Then there are plenty of marine parades, that's what you mean. Every seaside resort has them."

I shook my head. "It's got to be more retired than that," I said.

"Well, gentlemen, I can't think of anywhere else. Of course there's the Ruff."

"What's that?" I asked.

"The big chalk headland in Kent, close to Bradgate. It's got a lot of villas on the top, and some of the houses have staircases down to a private beach. It's a very high topped sort of place, and the residents there like to keep by themselves."

I tore open the tide tables and found Bradgate. High tide there was at 10:27 p. m. on the 15th of June.

"We're on the scent at last!" I cried excitedly. "How can I find out what is the tide at the Ruff?"

"I can tell you that, sir," said the coast guard man. "I once was loaned a house there in this very month, and I used to go out at night to the deep sea fishing. The tide's ten minutes before Bradgate."

I closed the book and looked around at the startled company.

"If one of those staircases has thirty-nine steps we have solved the mystery, gentlemen," I said. "I want the loan of your car, Sir Walter, and a map of the roads. If Mr. MacGillivray will spare me ten minutes I think we can prepare something for tomorrow."

It was ridiculous in me to take charge of the business like this, but they didn't seem to mind, and, after all, I had been in the show from the start. Besides, I was used to rough jobs, and these eminent gentlemen were too clever not to see it.

It was General Roper who gave me my commission.

"I for one," he said, "am content to leave the matter entirely in Mr. Hannay's hands."

By half past 3 I was tearing past the moonlit hedgerows of Kent with MacGillivray's best man on the seat beside me.

CHAPTER XIV.

Various Parties Converging on the Sea.

A PINK and blue June morning found me at Bradgate looking from the Griffin hotel over a smooth sea to the lighthouse on the cork sands, which looked the size of a hot bun.

A couple of miles further south and much nearer the shore a small destroyer was anchored. Scalfie, MacGillivray's man, who had been in the navy, knew the boat, and told me her name and her commander's, so I sent off a wire to Sir Walter.

After breakfast Scalfie got from a house agent a key for the gates of the staircases on the Ruff. I walked with him along the sands and sat down in a nook of the cliffs while he investigated the half dozen of them. I didn't want to be seen, but the place, at this hour was quite deserted, and all the time I was on that beach I saw nothing but the seagulls.

It took him more than an hour to do the job, and when I saw him coming toward me, counting a bit of paper, I can tell you my heart was in my mouth. Everything depended, you see, on my guess proving right.

He read aloud the number of steps in the different stairs. "Thirty-four, thirty-five, thirty-nine, forty-two, forty-seven and twenty-one," where the cliffs grew lower. I almost got up and shouted.

We hurried back to the town and sent a wire to MacGillivray. I wanted half a dozen men, and I directed them to divide themselves among different specified hotels. Then Scalfie set out to prospect the house at the head of the thirty-nine steps.

He came back with news that both puzzled and reassured me. The house was called Trafalgar lodge and belonged to an old gentleman called Appleton—a retired stockbroker, the house agent said.

Mr. Appleton was there a good deal in the summer time and was in residence now—had been for the better part of a week. Scalfie could pick up very little information about him, except that he was a decent old fellow, who paid his bills regularly and was always good for a fiver for a local charity. Then Scalfie seems to have penetrated to the back door of the house, pretending he was an agent for sewing machines.

Only three servants were kept—a cook, a parlourmaid and a housemaid—and they were just the sort that you would find in a respectable middle-class household.

The cook was not the gossiping kind and had pretty soon shut the door in his face, but Scalfie said he was positive she knew nothing. Next door there was a new house building which would give good cover for observation, and the villa on the other side was to let, and its garden was rough and shrubby.

I borrowed Scalfie's telescope and before lunch went for a walk along the Ruff.

I kept well behind the rows of villas and found a good observation point on the edge of the golf course. There I had a view of the line of turf along the cliff top, with seats placed at intervals and the little square plots, railed in and planted with bushes, whence the staircases descended to the beach.

I saw Trafalgar Lodge very plainly, a red brick villa with a veranda, a tennis lawn behind and in front the ordinary seaside flower garden full of marguerites and scraggy geraniums. There was a flagstaff from which an enormous union jack hung limply in the still air.

Presently I observed some one leave the house and saunter along the cliff.

When I got my glasses on him I saw it was an old man, wearing white flannel trousers, a blue serge jacket and a straw hat. He carried fieldglasses and a newspaper and sat down on one of the lawn seats and began to read.

Sometimes he would lay down the paper and turn his glasses on the sea.

He looked for a long time at the destroyer. I watched him half an hour, till he got up and went back to the house for his luncheon, when I returned to the hotel for mine.

I wasn't feeling very confident. This decent, commonplace dwelling was not what I had expected. The man might be the bald archeologist of that horrible moorland farm, or he might not. He was exactly the kind of satisfied old bird you will find in every suburb and every holiday place. If you wanted a type of the perfectly harmless person you would probably catch on that.

Rite after lunch, as I sat in the hotel porch, I saw the thing I had hoped for and dreaded to miss. A yacht came up from the south and dropped anchor pretty far opposite the Ruff.

She seemed about a hundred and fifty tons, and I saw she belonged to the squadron from the white ensign. So Scalfie and I went down to the harbor and hired a boatman for a strenuous fishing.

I speak a warm and powerful afternoon. We caught between of about twenty pounds of sea bream and out in that choppy blue sea I took a peculiar view of things.

Above the white cliffs of the Ruff I saw the green and red of the villas, and especially the great flagstaff of Trafalgar Lodge. About 4 o'clock, when we had fished enough, I made the boatman row us round the yacht, which lay like a delicate white bird ready at a moment to flee. Scalfie said she must be a fast boat from her build and that she was pretty heavily engaged.

Her name was the Ariadne, as I discovered from the cap of one of the men who was polishing brasswork.

I spoke to him and got an answer in the soft dialect of Essex. Another hand that came along passed me the time of day in an unmistakable English tongue. Our boatman had an argument with one of them about the weather, and for a few minutes we lay on our oars close to the starboard bow.

Then the men suddenly disregarded us and bent their heads to their work as an officer came along the deck.

He was a pleasant, clean looking young fellow, and he put a question to us about our fishing in very good English. But there could be no doubt about him. His close cropped head and the cut of his collar and the never came out of England.

That did something to reassure me, but as we rowed back to Bradgate my obstinate doubts would not be dismissed.

The thing that worried me was the reflection that my enemies knew that I had got my knowledge from Scuddier, and it was Scuddier who had given me the clue to this place. If they knew that Scuddier had this clue would they not change their plans?

Too much depended on their success for them to take any risks. The whole question was how much they understood about Scuddier's knowledge. I had talked confidently last night about Germans being likely to stick to a carefully planned scheme, but if they had any suspicion that I was on their track they would be fools not to cover it.

I wondered if the man last night had seen that I recognized him. Somehow I did not think he had, and to that I clung. But the whole business had never seemed so difficult as that afternoon when by all calculations I should have been rejoicing in assured success.

In the hotel I met the commander of the destroyer, to whom Scalfie introduced me, and with whom I had a few words. Then I thought I would put in an hour or two watching Trafalgar lodge.

I found a place further up the hill in the garden of an empty house. From there I had a full view of the court, on which two figures were having a game of tennis.

One was the old man, whom I had already seen; the other was a younger fellow, wearing some club colors in the scarf round his middle. They played with tremendous zest like two city gent who wanted hard exercise to open their pores. You couldn't conceive a more innocent spectacle.

They shouted and laughed and stopped for drinks when a maid brought out two tankards on a salver.

I rubbed my eyes and asked myself if I was not the most immortal fool on earth. Mystery and darkness had hung about the men who hunted me over the Scotch moor in aeroplane and motorcar and notably about that infernal antiquarian. It was easy enough to connect these folk with the knife that pinned Scuddier to the door and with fell designs on the world's peace.

But here were two guileless citizens taking their innocent exercise and soon about to go indoors to a humdrum dinner, where they would talk of market prices and the last cricket scores and the gossip of their native barlinton.

I had been making a net to catch vultures and falcons, and lo and behold, two plump thrushes had blundered into it!

Presently a third figure arrived, a young man on a bicycle with a bag of golf clubs slung on his back.

HOW TO BE SLIM

If you are too fat and want to reduce your weight 15 or 20 pounds, don't starve and weaken your system, or think you must always be laughed at on account of your fat, but go to Smith Drug Co. or any good druggist, and get a box of Oil of Korein capsules, take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week and note what a pleasant and reliable method this is for removing superfluous fat from any part of the body.

It costs little, is absolutely harmless and a week's trial should convince anyone that it is unnecessary to be burdened with even a single pound of unsightly fat. Advertisement.

"I never have any secrets from my wife, sir, but of course, if you insist."

"I do insist, Mr. Jones. You see, if you tell your wife my wife is sure to hear of it sooner or later, and then she will want to know why I don't give her more money for gowns, instead of throwing it away on my employees."

"Doctor, my brother stepped in a hole and wrenched his knee, and now he limps. What would you do in a case like that?"

"Now, Bobbie, didn't your conscience tell you that you had done wrong?"

"No, I knew it already."

"You fellows should drink

Blatz

The best beer brewed"

George Stovall, for four years manager in the big leagues, in an editorial in the Kansas City Star, says: "And here's another thing that may sound odd, but it's true just the same, and every old ball player will tell you so: a glass or two of beer after a game does not hurt any ball player—on the contrary, I believe it is a good thing. The player has expended a lot of energy; is hot through and through and a glass of beer will do him good. I've done that all my life, and nine out of every ten ball players who have played the game for ten or twelve years have done the same thing and will tell you so."

FEDS' PASSING FAILS TO STOP BIG PRICES FOR BETTER PLAYERS

Prediction Incorrect of Third Major League Frenzied Finance Would Be Thing of Past.

New York, Aug. 1.—The passing of the Federal league was supposed to mark the end of frenzied finance in baseball if the big league magnates were correctly quoted shortly after that memorable occurrence. Recent events, however, would lead to the belief that although their intentions may have leaned in that direction at the time, they are still ready and willing to pay big sums for what are reported to be big sums for players whom they believe may help them in their struggle for pennants.

The deal which shifted Mathewson to Cincinnati and Herzog to New York involved some thousands of dollars in addition to the extra players who also figured in the transaction. The New York club is understood to have paid something like $10,000 cash to Cincinnati along with Mathewson, Roush and McKeeha for the privilege of signing Herzog and Killebrew.

Herzog received a new three-year contract with the Giants at a yearly salary of $10,000 per season and Killebrew's contract was continued at the original salary of $10,000. Herzog signed a three-year contract with Cincinnati to manage that club at an annual salary said to be in excess of $10,000. The same position in the neighborhood of $40,000. In all more than $75,000 was involved in the deal, although the shifting of contracts makes the actual outlay of money less than this amount.

Weegman of Chicago and Ebbets of Brooklyn offered about $30,000 each for the privilege of doing business with Herzog without success. The fact that somebody must be making money in baseball notwithstanding the copious rainy spells, wars, movies and other factors which were supposed to be curtailing gate receipts.

According to an authority who keeps close tabs upon the receipts and expenses of major league athletics there is also some money in college baseball and football. The net profits of the Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania eleven last season is set at a trifle over $240,000, while the mines showed a profit of something over $30,000. The fact that the foot ball teams, playing less than a third as many games as the baseball nines, were able to pick up about eight times the profits of the diamond combinations, shows that the gridiron game still holds first place as a money maker in college sports.

MORRIS MILLER

The Brooklyn Dodgers have an awful time trying to lose their short field looked after properly. They have tried Ollie O'Mara and then Ivan Olson and finally Gus Getz. All of these young men have euphonious names, but not quite the right stuff at short. It's an old gag that a pennant winning team must have a good caretaker at short or their chances are slender and if the Dodgers don't cop the rag it may be because of that weakness.

From a perusal of some of John McGraw's newspaper articles, it would seem that he's an agreeable old party and anxious to please. He has given every team in the American league a chance for the pennant—everyone except one, which is Athletics. This looks like an effort to slight Connie Mack.

Lee Magee is playing a nifty game for the Yankees. He has been shoved up to the lead-off position in the Yank batting order, which seems somehow to have perked up his batting greatly and he is slugging the ball like all get out. Also he is fielding in a marvelous way and making daily catches that few if any others would essay. Lee is said to have the faculty of making hard plays look easy and doing work that gets great applause when done by more spectacular players.

News comes from Spain that Jack Johnson now a resident there, is in such reduced circumstances as to be in real want. In fact, if Artha looks good to actually starve is he doesn't soon pick up a little change. It would have been well if Jack had been a little more prudent in his palmy days and put by a bit. He managed to clean up a thousand on a fight he staged some time ago and that has all been used up long since. Jack's hope now is to start a boxing school.

It looks like a fair bet that so long as the White Sox declare they are the victims of circumstances they will not come much nearer to leading than they are at present. Critics on every side have wondered why Joe Tinker's sears aren't able to make most of their adversaries and at their approach, but somehow they aren't. It is commonly admitted that the White Sox look like world-beaters on paper but not enough stars on the payroll to fit out the several divisions of teams. They continue to claim that they are the strongest team in the circuit and that by rights they should be at the top of the bunch, but misfortune has forever detained them. Perhaps they would get more sympathy and support if they didn't show such an eagerness to alibi.

It seems that Marty O'Toole is anxious to make a return to his old company. Marty has been pitching the best sort of ball for Omaha in the Western league, which team, by the by, seem all set to cop the rag without much greater effort.

Eddie Roush, the Giants' utility outfielder who went to the Cincinnati Reds in the Herzog-Matty deal, may have a chance now to show his stuff and get a bit of acclaim. Roush played with the Reds last season and there are a lot of ex-feds players who will tell you that he's a better man than Bennie Kauff. He is certainly a staid and more dependable fielder and is a streak at getting down to first. He batted forty points behind Kauff last season, but he is slugging the ball now that he's in a regular lineup and getting his daily chance. It looks like he will be a help to Matty in bolstering up the Reds and he will have a chance to make his fortune.

A while ago when the Cleveland Indians were out in front Lee Fohl said it was foolish to think that a ball team needed twenty-five men. Since then, though, bum luck has hit the team and three pitchers, several infielders and Steve O'Neill, the first string catcher, were laid up, and Fohl can see now the wisdom of having a few extra men about. A bigger crowd of fast utility men would help the Indians a whole lot just now.

It has been remarked at different times that southpaws are always the jinx of the Chicago White Sox and recent done makes it seem that they are just as unpalatable to the Cubs.

FIFTH GAME TO SOX; ATHLETICS LOSE, 4-3

Philadelphia Shows a Little Form and Pushed Rowlands Hard Over Eleven Innings.

Fournier's single in the eleventh wound up a series of five victories for the White Sox, after they had stretched every muscle to win from the Athletics yesterday. The score was 4 to 3. Garnering three hits in the eighth and working Lefty Williams for a flock of passes the Philadelphia team went into a 3 to 3 tie with the Sox.

With Williams' floundering Red Faber was called from the trenches while Joe Bush was heaving for Sheehan, having taken his place when Rowlands changed over to Faber. Larry Lajorie's overthrown gave the Sox the break and Fournier's single, as he was called in to pinch hit for Faber, drove in the winning run in the second extra inning.

Red Sox Held Lead.
Detroit got but two hits off Ruth and Boston evened up the series with a 6 to 0 victory. Five of the runs were secured in the fifth inning on Detroit errors.

CORFU, MEDITERRANEAN SEA NAVAL BASE, NOW ABANDONED BY LITTLE ARMY OF SERBIA

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Corfu, Greece, Aug. 1.—The completion of the transport of the Serbian army from Corfu to Saloniki, according to allied naval officers on the island, by no means indicates that the Allies are going to abandon the island. Corfu is too valuable as a naval base from which the exit from the Adriatic can be commanded. With the Italian naval base at Brindisi, the British base at Tarento and French bases at Corfu and Argostoli, the chances of Austrian or German vessels slipping into the Mediterranean from Pola or Durazzo are very small. It will be a long time before the French flag ceases to float from the walls of the ancient fortress overlooking the town of Corfu, or convalescent French sailors to bask in the sun on the warm terrace of the Emperor William's villa, the Achilleion.

BOARD OF CONTROL HOLDS MONTHLY MEETING TODAY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., Aug. 1.—The state board of control is having its regular monthly meeting today for the auditing of reports. One of the matters to come before the board late today or tomorrow is the contract for the erection of buildings at the home for the feeble-minded at Union Grove, Racine county. The building bids submitted some time ago were excess of the appropriation and the board appointed State Engineer J. D. Mack and the architect to go over the plans and see what buildings could be eliminated and thus bring the institution within the appropriation cost.

KANSAS CONDUCTS STATE PRIMARY; CAPPER FINDS MUCH OPPOSITION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Topeka, Kan., Aug. 1.—Kansas political parties through primaries today are nominating their state tickets for the November election.

Full tickets, from governor down to county officers, are being named. Three parties will enter the field with a ticket, the Republicans (now in power), the Democrats and the Socialists. No Progressive ticket was offered the voters. Governor Arthur Capper has no opposition for the republican nomination.

STAR TRIO IN MATTY DAY CELEBRATION AT N. Y. POLO GROUNDS

Left to right, Manager McGraw, Buck Herzog in Giants uniform, and Matty in Reds uniform. Christy Mathewson received a wonderful ovation at the New York Polo grounds on his first appearance there as manager of the Cincinnati Reds. Manager McGraw of the Giants had no desire to win, and the game went to Cincinnati. Former Manager Herzog of the Reds played in a New York uniform, and had an unlucky day.

SECRETARY LANE IS A GOOD SHOT

Secretary Franklin K. Lane (below and top right foreground) and Franklin D. Roosevelt on rifle range at Winthrop, Md.

Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane believes in preparedness, and so has spent considerable time this summer on the rifle range at Winthrop, Md., where he has become a good shot. Another preparedness advocate who is seen often on the Winthrop range is Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy and cousin of Colonel Roosevelt. In the upper picture Roosevelt and Lane are both seen wearing straw hats. Lane is in the foreground.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS' MECCA IS PORTLAND

Twenty-Ninth Biennial Convention Opens Today in Western Coast City—Pythian Sisters Convene (SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Portland, Ore., Aug. 1.—The twenty-ninth biennial convention of the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, opened here today with members present from all parts of the United States. The opening session was given over to a joint assembly of the Supreme lodge and the Supreme temple, Pythian Sisters, which was attended by friends and members generally.

Formal addresses of welcome were delivered by Governor James Withycombe and Mayor H. R. Albee. One of the responses was made by B. S. Young, of Ada, Ohio, Supreme chancellor.

Following the joint assembly the Supreme lodge went into executive session. At the same time the Supreme temple, Pythian Sisters, and the Grand Lodge of Oregon held the first sessions of their conventions in separate halls.

The principal parade of the convention is to be held this afternoon. The parade will include the Supreme lodge, Grand Lodges and subordinate lodges generally are to participate. Tonight Walter B. Ritchie, of Illinois, past supreme chancellor, will deliver his golden jubilee address on "The Pythian Lesson of Friendship."

Last night thousands of Pythians from all over the United States were guests at a public reception at the Hotel Hamilton, at which short addresses were made. Gus C. Moser, of Portland, supreme representative, presided. The principal speaker was James E. Watson, of Indiana, Republican nominee in that state for the United States senate.

Portland was gaily decorated along the principal streets and brilliantly illuminated in honor of the occasion. Ropes and clusters of multi-colored electric lights festooned nearly all the downtown streets. Barrers and flags in countless number floated overhead.

When the first session of the Supreme lodge opened today the Supreme temple, Pythian Sisters, began its fourteenth biennial convention and the Grand Lodge at Portland is to open its thirty-fifth annual meeting. The Supreme lodge is expected to conclude its business on either August 8 or August 9.

GEARMAN RAILWAY EMPLOYEES OF ALL CLASSES ORGANIZE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
The Hague, Aug. 1.—The General German Railwaymen's union, an organization embracing all ranks and classes of employees on state and private railways, came into existence recently.

The new organization owes its birth to the fact that the hundred thousand railwaymen who have joined the colors since the beginning of the war have been replaced by employees from other unions, such as engineers, metal workers, transport workers, etc. Having been released from their old allegiance, the latter joined together formally not only with the object of maintaining their status as union men but for the purpose of constituting an important reinforcement of the railwaymen's union.

RAILROADS TO ASK INCREASE IN FARES

Advance to 2.4 Cents a Mile Will Be Sought at Next Legislature—
Traveling Men Want Mileage Books.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., Aug. 1.—That the railroads in states having a two-cent fare will ask the legislatures to increase those rates to 2.4 cents and that the traveling men of the state are going to ask the legislature to compel the railroads to sell 2,000 mile books on all railroads of the state give the clue to an interesting fight that will be made before the legislature next winter. This information came out in a hearing before the railroad commission yesterday afternoon. The testimony was given by A. P. Fleckenstein, special representative for the United States commercial travelers.

Mr. Fleckenstein said that Chairman McCleod of the Western Passenger association has told him that the railroads were going to try to get those states, which includes Wisconsin, where the car fares are two cents, to advance them to 2.4 cents or to 2.5 cents.

The revenue of passenger earnings of these railroads operating in the state of Wisconsin has $3,000,000, said Mr. Fleckenstein. To increase the passenger fare to 2.4 cents per mile to conform with the interstate rates could mean an advance of $1,395,000 to the taxpayers of this state. These figures are based on the 1914 earnings of these roads.

In the course of his statement, Mr. Fleckenstein asked that the railroad commission grant lower excess baggage rates at once and that the United Commercial Travelers would go before the next legislature and ask for rates on mileage books.

"In cases before the interstate commerce commission and the various state commissions before which I have appeared the railroads have offered in evidence this statement, that the average car fare collected throughout the United States was .01855 cents per mile," continued Mr. Fleckenstein. "According to the railroad's own statement, we do not get as low a rate as pleasure seekers, traveling on tourists' tickets, while we as business men working daily in the interest of commerce have to pay the maximum rate."

GREEK KING REFUSES TO HEED PEOPLE'S CHEER AND CLAMOR FOR WAR

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Athens, Aug. 1.—A dramatic moment marked a military horse show given recently in the stadium. The jumping and riding exhibition were over. The white-skirted evzones had marched impressively past the royal tribune, and two regiments of soldiers were drawn up before King Constantine and Queen Sophia to sing Greek folk songs. Several songs passed pleasantly enough. Then there came one about the exploits of Constantine Paleologus, Emperor of Byzance.

Even to those who could not understand the words there was something stirring in the martial lines. And when a thousand voices rang out: "The Warrior King Unsheath His Sword," suddenly the whole mass blackening the gleaming marble of the stadium rose as of one impulse, applauding crying out: "Yes! Yes! The Warrior King Will Unsheath His Sword!" and craning their necks to see their sovereign, their warrior king of today.

Constantine I. sat erect and rigid in his smart, white uniform—a handsome, martial figure. He was over, but he made no movement. His left hand grasped the hilt of his sword. But the sword remained unsheathed, and the song went on. Only when the king had gone and the crowd was pouring down the street that runs in front of the royal residence, some man shouted that it was shameful that the applause for the king had been paid for by German money.

A crowd gathered instantly. There was a shot. An officer on the man who had shouted in the head with his sabre. A score of secret police sprang up in a moment an the offender (not the officer) was hustled off through an unfinished building, down back streets to jail.

NEARLY WILD WITH BURNING ITCHING

Eczema. From Hands to Elbows One Mass. Could Not Put Hands in Water. Could Not Sleep.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My daughter was poisoned by salt and it turned into eczema and from her hands to her elbows was one mass of red, burning, itching eruptions. It began with a rash which was of such a burning itching nature that at times she could not put her hands in water and she could not sleep. She suffered intensely for several weeks and I tried wringing towels out of hot water and putting a rubber sheet across her, but she wasn't helped. The doctor said to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I did and the itching and burning left her, and I used four boxes of Cuticura Soap and she was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Ida Brown, 7028 Eggleston Ave., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 22, 1915.
